

Public Schools

There are a number of public school districts in the Houston area. All are independent of each other and have certain standards and criteria to meet. While there are no fees to attend public school, you are required to reside in the school district and attend the school in your zoned area. If attendance at a particular public school is desired, you should research the school(s) prior to renting or buying your accommodation in order to best meet your child's educational needs. Transportation is available for children to and from school. All school districts have websites and the Texas Education Agency website has details of all Houston school districts.

All schools keep a similar calendar. Some districts may have different in-service days, but basically school starts around mid August and ends around mid May. There is a week off for Thanksgiving (third week in November), and approximately two weeks off for Christmas and the New Year. There is also a one week long Spring Break, usually in March. In addition, there are several days off a year for public holidays.
